The Siege of the Alamo

The siege of the Alamo commenced on February 23rd, 1836. The Mexican army relentlessly bombarded the fort with artillery, and repeated attempts were made to storm its walls. The Texans, led by legendary frontiersmen Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie, fought back with unwavering determination.

A Fierce Defense Against Overwhelming Odds

The Texans held out for an astonishing 13 days, inflicting heavy casualties on the Mexican army. The Alamo's defenders became symbols of courage and unwavering resolve. However, on March 6th, 1836, the Mexican forces finally breached the Alamo's walls.

The Final Stand: Remember the Alamo
